

Compact Welding Machine

This compact welding machine is suitable for various welding applications. It features adjustable settings for precise control and durable construction for reliable performance.

Product Overview

Professional Compact Welding Solution

The KXT-200 is a versatile welding machine engineered for precision and reliability in diverse welding applications. Its compact and portable design ensures ease of use across various job sites without compromising on build quality. Built for professional performance, this unit features highly adjustable settings to provide users with exact control over their welding tasks.

Key Performance

Performance Metrics

200 A

Rated Output

Features

Key Features

- Adjustable settings for precision control
- Durable construction for heavy-duty use
- Compact and portable design
- Suitable for various welding applications

Certifications

Standards

Industrial Grade, Portable