

Public Health Emergency Response Center

This center enhances the continent's capacity to respond to health threats. It incorporates advanced laboratory facilities, data centers, and training spaces to support public health initiatives.

Overview

State-of-the-Art Public Health Infrastructure

The Public Health Emergency Response Center is a modern facility designed to enhance continental capacity for responding to health threats. The complex features advanced laboratory facilities, data centers, and specialized training spaces to support public health initiatives. It is equipped with cutting-edge technology for disease surveillance, research, and emergency response, serving as a crucial hub for safeguarding public health.

Facility Details

Location	Addis Ababa, Ethiopia
Architectural Highlights	Cylindrical Towers, Horizontal Banding Design, Multi-story Structure

Capabilities

Core Capabilities

- Disease Surveillance
- Advanced Research
- Emergency Response Coordination
- Public Health Training

Key Components

Laboratory Facilities • Data Centers • Training Spaces