

Television Component

This is a component designed for use in television sets. It can be used as a replacement part.

Overview

Professional Television Component

This specialized television component, identified as model FC3002, is designed for technical integration within display systems. Engineered for reliability, this part serves as an essential element for repair, maintenance, or original assembly projects. It is constructed to meet standard industry requirements for television hardware components.

Identification

Model Identifier	FC3002
Category	TV Component, Electronics Hardware, Display System Part