

Wired Network Communication Device

This wired network communication device enables data transfer across networks. It provides stable connectivity for various networking applications.

Product Overview

Professional Network Communication Device

This wired network communication device is engineered for reliable data transmission in professional environments. Featuring a comprehensive layout with multiple ports, it supports high-density connectivity for various communication protocols. The design integrates advanced cooling and ventilation systems to ensure stable performance during continuous operation.

Technical Specifications

Available Perspectives

- Top View
- Front View
- Side View

Structure

Multi-port, Wired, Integrated Cooling